Teens lift car off pinned man

Three young men credited with saving 44-year-old's life

By TIM WIECLAWSKI
Metro Ottawa

Three quick-acting teenagers are being credited with saving the life of a man who got pinned after a car slipped off its jack yesterday.

Paramedics say "a Mother's Day tragedy" was averted when the teens responded to a man's screams and worked together to hoist the car off him.

"They probably saved his life," said paramedic team leader Steven

Leu. "Getting the car off of him was critically important."

At 10:30 a.m. yesterday, Ishmael Mbeshha, 18, was cycling when he heard screaming and spotted a man pinned beneath a black Chrysler parked behind a row of townhouses at 1775 Russell Rd., near Smyth Road and St. Laurent Boulevard.

"I saw him under his car and he was yelling," said Mbeshha.

Mbeshha attempted to lift the car himself, but said, "I couldn't help because I was alone" so he ran to find his friend, Fiston Issa, 19. With the help of another young man, who did not want to be identified, all three were able to lift the car enough to pull the man out.

« They probably saved his life. Getting the car off of him was critically important. »

Paramedic team leader Steven Leu

Mbeshha said the man — identified as Jean-Paul Chateau, 44 — was unconscious by the time they freed him.

The man had removed the vehicle's front driver-side wheel in order to make repairs. He was using a car jack to support the vehicle while he worked underneath. The vehicle slipped off the jack and fell on top of him, trapping him under the frame.

While the teens were struggling to lift the car, the man's four-year-old daughter ran to tell her mother, who called 9-1-1.

Paramedics arrived within moments and stabilized the patient. He was treated for serious, but non-life threatening chest injuries and transferred to the trauma centre.

Chateau is recovering in hospital with a broken clavicle and two broken ribs.

"He's OK now, but they said we have to wait for 24 hours," said his wife, Hermine.

"They have to do a few more X-rays. He's very lucky. He thought he was dying."

Science standouts vie for $1 million in scholarships

By TIM WIECLAWSKI

Danielle Appavoo's father frequently complains about how much waste he creates as a doctor.

"They only use their gloves for two minutes and then they have to throw them out," she said.

"Every new person they see, they have to use a new pair."

So Appavoo, a Grade 8 student, developed a biodegradable surgical glove made from potato starch and glycerin. The glove is Appavoo's entry in the 47th annual Canada Wide Science Fair, which is ongoing this week at the University of Ottawa.

Nearly 500 Grade 7 to 12 students from across Canada are in Ottawa to present inventions or discoveries in areas ranging from biotechnology and pharmaceuticals, to physics and mathematics. All were standouts at their regional qualifiers, and have come here to settle whose project tops the youth science scene in 2008.

At stake is close to $1 million in grants and scholarships, as well as chances for some students to work in research labs.

"Sometimes that kicks off a career ... because it goes way beyond what they would learn in a classroom," said Dan Smythe with the CWSF.

Student-developed concepts range from improvements to modern hockey stick design, to motorized walkers, harnessing wind energy and developing the properties of garlic.

«If you want to go some place where you find kids that are going to cure cancer or develop the alternative energy, these are them.»

Theron Hlasny and Raef Given, for example, examined whether planes fly better in hot or cold weather.

The duo concluded planes fly better when it's cold because the air is more dense and gives them more lift.

While few items on display will make the leap to a commercial marketplace, the fair is a good place to scout the country's potentially top scientific minds of the future. Note: Canadian astronaut Roberta Bondar and Research In Motion (of BlackBerry fame) founder Mike Lazaridis are CWSF alumni.

"If you want to go some place where you find kids that are going to cure cancer or develop the alternative energy, these are them," said Saskatchewan fair delegate, Annette Brockman.

Two men charged in shooting

Two men have been arrested for firearms offences after two gunshots rang out in the area of Frank and Bank streets in downtown Ottawa early yesterday morning.

Hartson Belance, 21, and David Blackwood, 19, both of Ottawa, face nine firearm-related charges. Belance faces an additional seven charges related to obstructing police and breach of probation.

Two suspects were arrested after a witness directed police to an apartment building, into which a suspect had been seen running while tucking an object into the waistband of his pants.

Officers found two suspects along with three women in an apartment. Police allege one of the men carried several rounds of .45-calibre ammunition.

A loaded .45-calibre pistol was reportedly found in the apartment and two spent shell casings were recovered in a parking lot near the building. The three females in the apartment at the time of the arrest were interviewed and released without charges.

City has taste for country

Farmers' market bustles early

By TIM WIECLAWSKI
Metro Ottawa

The Ottawa Farmers' Market only just wrapped its second weekend, but it's already approaching capacity.

"We have reached the number of booths on the second day this year that we expected to reach in late July or August," said president Andy Terauds, following the market's official opening ceremony yesterday. "It just proves how popular the market is both from the vendor and the customer point of view."

Yesterday, more than 60 vendors set up stalls offering everything from handcrafted wood buckets to bison meat to asparagus—all of it produced within 100 kilometres of the city, and sold directly from the producer.

At its peak Terauds said the market this year will have more than 80 stalls set up in Lansdowne Park. Last year, over 26 Sundays, Terauds said the market generated $1.5 million in revenue.

The market has signed on for two more years in Lansdowne Park, although Terauds said its long-term future remains uncertain.

"From what we are hearing now, the city has committed to making the farmers' market one of the key elements of the redesign for Lansdowne Park," he said. "But long term, nobody knows."

open
» Starting in June, the market will be open Thursday as well as Sunday.

April Robinson has visited the market for several years, drawn by the variety and quality of goods for sale, but also because of sellers' first-hand expertise.

"The producers are all here, so when you have a question you can ask them how it was grown or made. That's definitely a selling feature for me."

» STABBING A 57-year-old man is in stable condition in hospital today after being stabbed as many as 10 times in the head, neck and torso around 2:40 p.m. yesterday. The victim was able to call 9-1-1 and paramedics responded to a residence in the 100 block of Daly Avenue, where they found a victim suffering from multiple stab wounds. Paramedic team leader Paul Morneau said the victim had lost a "profuse amount of blood" and his wounds were considered life-threatening.

He was stabilized using several large-bore intravenous lines. Ottawa police Staff Sgt. Glenn Wasson said the victim was "marginally acquainted" with the suspect in his attack. The suspect is described as a male, 17 years old, with short, wavy dark brown hair.

» DROWNING The body of a 29-year-old Gatineau woman, believed to have drowned in Lake McGregor, was recovered by MRC des Collines police divers around 4:30 p.m. on Saturday.

According to MRC Collines Police Sgt. Louis Piché, the woman and her 39-year-old boyfriend had fallen out of their canoe at 1:30 a.m. on Saturday. The boyfriend, also from Gatineau, managed to swim to shore, but the woman did not make it. Piché said the couple was not wearing life-jackets, and alcohol may be a factor. An autopsy will be performed to confirm the cause of death. Police had yet to release the woman's name yesterday.

Bad behaviour on bus

Customer service training for drivers may be worthwhile

Bus drivers behaving badly. Oh boy. After recently witnessing two displays of bad temper from drivers whose actions were, in her opinion, unprofessional and bordered on dangerous, On Track reader Kaitlin Wainwright says she is fed up.

"OC Transpo could improve ridership in a cost-effective manner, starting with the way drivers are trained," she states in an e-mail.

She's not alone. OC Transpo's Livejournal posters weigh in regularly with stories about rude drivers and unprofessional behavior.

Be warned, the comments trail is not for the faint of heart. Riders and drivers alike mix it up on the forum — and the debate is often illuminating.

Personally, I'm wading into this topic with some trepidation. For me, driving a bus is one of those occupations I'm glad someone else is willing to do.

The pressure of dealing with the public, traffic, schedules, pedestrians, cyclists — often all at once — has to be right up there with brain surgery, without the nice sterile environment.

Not to put too fine a point on it, it's a job where one mistake can kill someone, and knowing that makes me personally cut bus drivers a whole lot of slack in the customer service department.

But the behaviour witnessed by Wainwright, and other riders' complaints, goes beyond poor manners. Everybody has bad days, but telling a rider to mind her "own damn business" when presented with a reasonable request is so astonishing that it smacks of contempt.

ON TRACK
NADINE DOOLITTLE
nadine.doolittle@metronews.ca

One bad apple, or was the driver in question just poorly trained?

OC Transpo's new driver recruits receive 32 days of intensive training both in-class and on the road. With such a tight training schedule, I can't imagine there's a lot of time to cover customer service in depth.

Even the term, 'customer service' doesn't adequately describe the skill set drivers need to employ on a day-to-day basis in the field.

New drivers, (and some veterans) have to keep their cool with the public at all times, and maintain their professionalism under less than ideal conditions.

That kind of discipline takes education, practice, reinforcement, and more practice.

It's a worthwhile investment for OC Transpo to make in its service because as far as riders are concerned, drivers are the face of OC Transpo.

Great job. Great view. Comes with a million people.

'Green-collar' jobs urged

Turning Ontario's vanishing blue-collar manufacturing jobs into stable, well-paying "green-collar" employment in the emerging green economy should be central to poverty-proofing the province, says a new report.

Ontario has the second-largest manufacturing workforce on the continent after California, yet the province seriously lags behind American states in retooling shuttered factories for the green industries of the future, notes the report, entitled

Work Isn't Working For Ontario Families.

The 27-page report, to be released at Queen's Park today, calls on the McGuinty government to kick-start the transformation by updating provincial labour laws, removing barriers to unionization of low-wage workplaces, investing in public goods and turning Ontario into a manufacturing hub for new green industries.

Ontario lost 205,000 sector jobs between 2002 and 2007.

NDP voting to topple

Motion criticizing Tory economic plan unlikely to succeed

strategic motion

» Critics say the NDP's confidence motion is aimed at the Liberals in a bid to once more embarrass Dion and highlight the refusal of Liberal MPs to defeat a Conservative government they regularly condemn.

Federal New Democrats will make a last-gasp bid today to topple the minority Conservatives, citing the country's growing "prosperity gap" as the reason Canadians should go to the polls.

But the political move is destined to fail, all but eliminating the chance of an election in the coming weeks and opening the door to a summer of campaigning by all political leaders in preparation for a possible federal campaign this fall.

"This could be certainly one of our last opportunities, if not our last opportunity, to say we think that the Harper government is wrong," NDP Leader Jack Layton said.

The New Democrats' motion calls on the Commons to acknowledge that the growing income gap is having a harmful effect on working and middle-income families.

And it says those woes have been "fostered by this government's unbalanced economic agenda, including its failure to reform employment insurance to ensure that people who lose their jobs during economic downturns are protected and trained."

But Layton's push for an election will have to wait because like the other confidence votes this parliamentary session, the Liberals aren't ready to bring down the government. That means they won't support the NDP's election manoeuvring.

"We'll not trigger an election through an NDP motion," Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion said last week. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Both sides digging in for mining fight

The mining industry has long operated out of sight, and mind. Not any more: Soaring prices for uranium, platinum and other minerals have touched off a claims-staking rush across much of Ontario.

And under Ontario's century-old Mining Act, and across Canada, the staking of claims on private and even public lands in secret is considered legal and crucial to the industry.

The race for resources has put the spotlight on the act as natives and non-natives are uniting to protest to Queen's Park over a prospector's ability to essentially dig out from under homeowners.

Much is at stake: Queen's Park is courting mining companies to boost the province's economy. Industry officials warn mining would die without free entry. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Lebanon crisis reaches fifth day

At least 8 killed as Hezbollah increases pressure

Hezbollah gunmen battled supporters of the government yesterday on the fifth day of a campaign by the Iranian-backed group that has dealt a severe blow to Washington's allies in Lebanon.

The fighting in Aley, a town in the mountains overlooking the capital, and nearby villages killed at least eight people.

Hezbollah, which is also backed by Syria, and its allies have in recent days routed pro-government gunmen in Beirut in Lebanon's worst civil strife since the 1975-1990 civil war.

The drive by Hezbollah to take control of strategic locations has increased pressure on the governing coalition, supported by the United States and Saudi Arabia, to accept the opposition's terms

» The Arab League said yesterday it would send a high-profile mission to Beirut to help mediate an end to Lebanon's worst civil strife in 18 years, but analysts were skeptical the efforts could yield significant results.

for ending 18 months of political conflict.

Hezbollah and allied Druze fighters took control of several villages in the Aley area yesterday, security sources said. Explosions and gunfire echoed across the pine-covered hills.

The clashes brought the death toll in five days of fighting across Lebanon to 53. At least 150 have been wounded.

Tornadoes kill 22 in U.S.

Path of destruction a mile wide in some places

Tornadoes killed at least 22 people and injured hundreds as they ripped through communities in the central and southeastern United States over the weekend.

Authorities said 14 people died in Missouri, six in Oklahoma and two in Georgia as the storms tracked a course from the border of Kansas and Oklahoma Saturday into Georgia yesterday, destroying homes, overturning cars, blocking roads, downing power lines and uprooting trees.

Ten people died in Newton County, Mo., on the border with Oklahoma, according to Susie Stonner of the Missouri Emergency Management Agency, adding that police had not ruled out finding more victims.

Hardest hit was Racine, a tiny community in Newton

County about 170 miles south of Kansas City.

The path of destruction was a mile wide in some places, said Jason Schumann, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Missouri.

"This looks like a very large tornado," he said. "We've got indications of cars that were thrown a quarter to a half-mile, and frame homes that were swept off their foundations."

Damage indicated an EF3

tornado, which would have estimated wind speeds of 136 to 165 mph, he said.

Hail the size of softballs and wind gusts of 80 mph were also reported in Missouri, where nearly 100 were injured, according to media reports.

U.S. President George W. Bush offered prayers for families of those who died and said a day the country celebrates as Mother's Day was, for some, a sad occasion. REUTERS

Desperation grows in Myanmar

More than one million struggling to survive: UN

Desperate survivors of cyclone Nargis headed out of Myanmar's Irrawaddy delta in search of food, water and medicine, but aid workers said yesterday that thousands will die if emergency supplies don't get through soon.

Buddhist temples and schools on the outskirts of the storm's trail of destruction are now makeshift refugee centres.

The UN humanitarian agency said in a new assessment that between 1.2 million and 1.9 million were struggling to survive in the aftermath of the storm that struck eight days ago.

France's plan

» France has suggested invoking a little-used "responsibility-to-protect" concept to deliver aid to Myanmar without government approval. But its bid to have the UN Security Council adopt its idea was rebuffed on Wednesday. France said it would keep trying to persuade other Security Council members to back the plan because it would bring shame on the international community if aid did not reach the victims of cyclone Nargis.

"Given the gravity of the situation including the lack of food and water, some partners have reported fears for security, and violent behaviour in the most severely afflicted areas," the United Nations Office for Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs said.

It said "the number of deaths could range from 63,290 to 101,682, and 220,000 people are reported to be missing." It said "acute environmental issues" posed a threat to life and health.

While Myanmar's reclusive military government is accepting aid from the outside world, including the United Nations, it will not let in the foreign logistics teams.

"Unless there is a massive and fast infusion of aid, experts and supplies into the hardest-hit areas, there's going to be a tragedy on an unimaginable scale," said Greg Beck of the International Rescue Committee. REUTERS

Global effort needed to save bears

EARTH TONES
SOPHIA DORE &
ANDREW LAURSEN
earthtones.metro@gmail.com

A symbol has emerged in the fight against global warming — the polar bear.

These magnificent beasts are in danger. The Arctic is warming up more quickly than the rest of the world and the Arctic ice is melting. These ice floes are where polar bears hunt seal, which forms a major part of their diet. The more ice-free days the Arctic has, the more food-free days the polar bears have. Even if the bears do not starve to death they can become too malnourished to reproduce and numbers of polar bears will plummet. Since the majority of polar bears live in Canada, Canadians are lobbying the federal government to do something to save them.

This got us thinking. In the past, the fate of an endangered species could largely be determined by the will of the government of the country in which the species lived to do something. For instance, rhinos and elephants have seen their populations rise because wildlife refuges were created and bans on hunting and poaching were enforced (although these populations are still vulnerable). Individual countries were able to take action and pass laws that directly, and in a relatively short time period, had a dramatic effect on animal populations. It took specific acts that directly targeted the threats to the species. We are not saying it was easy, but it was possible, given enough popular support and political will, to save a species from extinction.

Can we do this for the polar bear? Well, as we all know it is not that simple. It is within the power of the Canadian government to protect the habitat of the polar bear, to ensure that oil and gas exploration in the Arctic is limited. But the main threat to the polar bear cannot be eliminated by passing a single law or by hiring enforcement agents to prevent poaching or by setting aside land for habitat. It is going to take a global effort to save the polar bear. Far-away countries that a polar bear has never even heard of will have a part to play in saving this species.

This does not, of course, take the heat (or at least the warming) off the Canadian government to do something. Lately, Canada has been lukewarm at best in joining the worldwide anti-global warming effort. Canada can, and should, try to save the polar bear and other species threatened by climate change by cutting its own greenhouse emissions and working with other countries to lower global emissions of greenhouse gases.

But, in the end, saving the polar bear for good is not something the Canadian government can unilaterally decide to do. Just as it took the whole world to put the great white bear into danger, it will take the whole world to pull it back.

EnCana Corp., Canada's biggest energy company, said yesterday it plans to split into two separate oil and natural gas firms in an effort to wring out more value with crude prices at record highs.

EnCana, a $65 billion US gas and oilsands producer formed in a merger six years ago, said the move should help investors better gauge the parts of its business and remove a discount it says it

Guinness-maker to build, cut jobs

DUBLIN British drinks maker Diageo will spend millions on a new brewery near Dublin, but Guinness fans in Britain and Ireland will still get their dark beer from the historic brewery in the heart of the Irish capital.

The London-based beer and spirits maker said on Friday it will renovate its central Dublin brewery at St James's Gate to supply these drinkers, but will close two smaller sites by 2013 and cut its Irish brewery workforce by more than half. REUTERS

Maxime Talbot scored the go-ahead goal 8:51 into the third period, as the Pittsburgh Penguins topped the Philadelphia Flyers, 4-2, in Game 2 of the Eastern Conference finals.

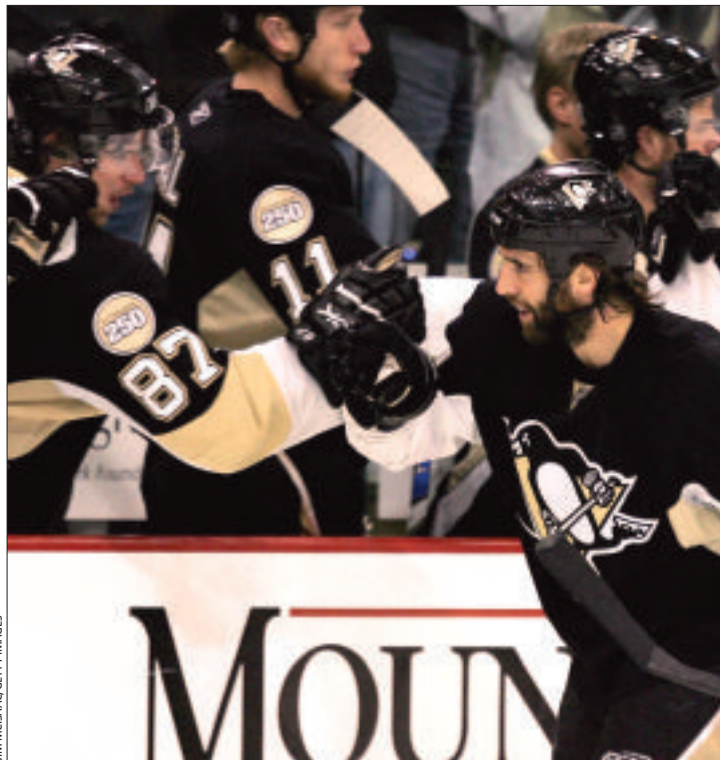

Talbot returned to the lineup after missing the last three games due to a broken right foot.

Sidney Crosby finished with a goal and an assist for the Penguins, who took a 2-0 series lead and can increase the advantage in the third contest, set for Tuesday in Philadelphia. Marian Hossa and Jordan Staal also scored for the Penguins.

Sergei Gonchar finished with three assists, while Marc-Andre Fleury stopped 30-of-32 shots in the victory for Pittsburgh, which has won 15 consecutive home games and is a perfect 7-0 in the playoffs so far at Mellon Arena.

Jeff Carter scored, and Mike Richards added a short-handed tally for the Flyers, who also lost Game 1 by a 4-2 score. Martin Biron faced 37 shots, and stopped 34 of them.

Sergio Garcia won the biggest title of his career, and his first on the PGA Tour in three years, with a playoff victory over American Paul Goydos at the Players Championship at Sawgrass yesterday in Florida.

The Spaniard, who began the final round three strokes off the pace, triumphed at the first extra hole after hitting a superb tee shot to four feet at the par-three 17th.

Although the 28-year-old missed the birdie putt, his par was good enough to sink Goydos who double-bogeyed after his tee shot found water short of the island green.

Saving trees with digital data

Survey indicates Canadians want to save paper

By RAFAEL BRUSILOW
for Metro Ottawa

A new study reveals the average working Canadian prints 30 pages of documents every day, of which 12 are thrown into the garbage.

The Leger Marketing study, produced in tandem with Recombo Paper Management Systems and Telus Corporation highlighted the need for waste paper management policies and digital document handling to reduce paper use in the workplace.

The study also showed that about half of Canadians surveyed would gladly use digital documentation in order to reduce paper waste at their place of work.

Joe Pach, director of environment at Telus, says the company is committed to reducing paper through the introduction of paperless contracts for its business accounts, which use secure digital signatures and interactive menus to eschew the need for paper. The documents are protected by encryption and fully legally binding.

Pach explains that the initiative, called Telus Secure Contracts, is meant to reduce paper waste in high-volume businesses that tend to use the most paper.

"The average company makes something like 19 copies of each customer-facing document. Having a virtual interface eliminates that need to move paper around — it's a way of dealing with contracts that is secure, digital and does still slow.

Several years ago, the law office of Behiel, Munkler & Will in Saskatchewan took 20,000 documents and files and scanned them into a digital format, letting the files be sent electronically and stored on hard drives instead of in filing cabinets. The company also converted many document processes, such as the filling of wills and land survey forms, to a digital format. Aaron Behiel, a partner at the firm, admits however that many people still end up asking for paper copies of documents, though the initiative has been a success at saving paper overall.

Pach suggests the acceptance of paper-saving initiatives such as digital documentation is being fuelled at the grassroots level by employees themselves who want the companies they work for to be good corporate citizens. Luckily for businesses, saving paper saves money as well.

"Employees today feel guilty about wasting paper and are expecting their employers will take the lead on environmental conservation. You want to look at the cost savings as well — there are benefits beyond the environmental element," Pach said.

Pach says the move to digital documents also makes sense from a standpoint of efficiency.

"Who wants to stand at a printer watching bits of paper come out when they could be more efficiently engaged? We're in the business of moving ideas and information rather than people and paper," Pach said.

Detail of the devil

Demon possession 'definitely' happens, demonologist says

By BRIAN TOWIE
for Metro Ottawa

The devil made Dr. William Bradshaw do it.

The retired minister and academic from St. Louis, Mo., recently released Sinister Among Us, a suspense novel about the president of a small American Midwest college who uncovers a group of Satanists at the centre of the school's problems.

But Bradshaw isn't out to simply send chills down a reader's spine, he claims the fictitious work is an introduction to his main labour — demonology.

"It's demonology 101," says Bradshaw. "I wrote it so that the layman could more easily find out about demons and evil spirits, and I've inserted the research in the form of a novel. You find out all about it."

A graduate of the University of Missouri and Yale Divinity School, Bradshaw was studying for his PhD at the University of St. Andrews in Scotland in 1961 under religious scholar Matthew Black. Black, among other theologians, was exploring the possibility of a satanic influence behind the Nazi atrocities during World War II, asking if people could be that inhumane to each other independently of ultra-human assistance, or if a kind of demonic possession was involved. Bradshaw got on the case, tracing the appearance of Satan and demons through early Middle Eastern literature and Judeo-Christian texts, and researching exorcisms or cases considered to be exorcisms.

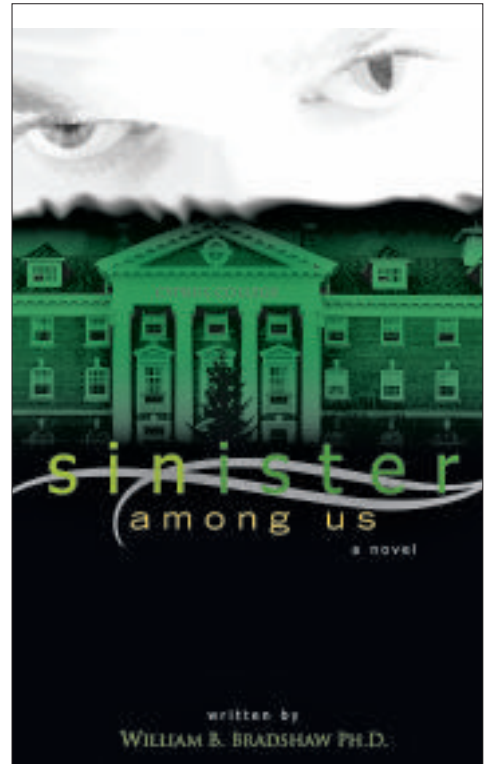

He returned Stateside after his studies as America's first strictly academic demonologist, always stressing that he has always done his best to keep his research as unbiased as possible.

"I do not say what I do and do not believe because people will say, 'Well, that's why you wrote that.' I'm giving people the information and they make their own decisions," says Bradshaw. "Let me tell you that scholarly information would suggest that demon possession, very definitely, does happen."

And it happens to good people, Bradshaw theorizes, noting that targets tend toward the innocent, highly virtuous and unusually gifted. Bradshaw says diabolical inhabitations themselves are not unlike the scenario depicted in the horror classic The Exorcist, which, pea soup sprayings and spinning heads aside, is based on an alleged 1949 possession case involving a nine-year-old boy from Cottage City, Md.

"Hollywood trumps it up for dramatic effect, of course," says Bradshaw. "But I would say The Exorcist is the most accurate depiction of demonic possession."

You might think such a pursuit would make him that scary bugger whom no one at the party wants to talk to, but Bradshaw claims this isn't so.

"It's really the other way," he laughs. "Interest in demonology tends to ebb and flow according to what's going on in the world. When there's great human suffering, people look for reasons why, and these questions have come to the fore once again."

Job hunting for a new millenium

THE GRADUATE
KAVITA GOSYNE
kgosyne@yahoo.ca

Job hunting has become something of a sport in its own right. Gone are the days where the simple mailed out paper resumé sufficed. Today companies are taking an active role in searching out top talent. The market is moving at a faster rate with e-mail applications and Google background checks, keeping up isn't easy which is why many job hunters are creating portfolio websites. "Finding that first job is a daunting task, especially if you're looking for something specific," says recent graduate and innovative job hunter, Michael Sefcik. "I wanted to go beyond the traditional one-page resumé and provide potential employers with more information about me," he explains, "I wanted to stand out from other applicants and showcase all of my past experiences in an innovative way."

Sefcik, 25, recently graduated from Lund University in Sweden with his masters and previously received his bachelor of arts at York University.

Disheartened by the way traditional job sites present online resumé — which are only available to recruiters who are registered to the job site — Sefcik wanted more.

"Sure, job seekers can create an online resumé, but more often than not, it's limited to a lacklustre text version."

He was inspired to create an online resumé after browsing through the professional websites of university professors and graphic designers.

"Professors often wrote in great detail about their research, whereas designers used portfolios to provide samples of their work. I thought to myself, it would be impossible for them to fit everything onto one piece of paper, but a website on the other hand, is the perfect medium."

A recent survey reveals that two out of three executives believe that professional networking websites like LinkedIn will be used more often to recruit employees within the next five years.

The survey which was developed by Robert Half International, one of the largest staffing services firm specializing in accounting and finance, and conducted by an independent research firm was based on interviews with 100 senior Canadian executives.

It also found that 25 per cent plan to tap into social networking sites like Facebook or MySpace as a recruiting resource and 15 per cent mentioned video resumé.

"When looking for information about someone I immediately turn to the Internet. I think whether we like it or not, more and more personal information will end up online," says Sefcik, "The important thing then, is to manage our online identity in a way that is helpful to ourselves and others, but also respects our privacy."

Resumé and portfolios also usually contain personal information that makes safety an essential matter, which Sefcik says he took into consideration during the build of his site.

Next week Sefcik breaks down how you too can build your own portfolio website in three easy steps and how effective his website has been so far.

Kavita Gosyne, 26, is a vibrant young journalist. She writes about her transition from student to employee and the issues she faces such as office politics.

Scarlett covers Waits

Actress ready to take 'private' songs public

Scarlett Johansson describes the recording of her Tom Waits covers album, Anywhere I Lay My Head, as an "intimate experience — almost private, in a way."

Of course, when you're a Hollywood actress, Louis Vuitton model and occasional tabloid fixture, pretty much nothing is private.

That's the challenge facing Atco/Rhino Records as it promotes the album, due May 20. Johansson is a familiar face — and name recognition is a definite marketing bonus — but the phrase "actress-turned-singer" is bound to set off warning bells.

"I don't think being a celebrity is a hindrance — I think it will get people curious," project manager Liuba Shapiro said. "It's not like a Paris (Hilton) brand. Scarlett has credible performances (as an actress)."

Johansson's take on Waits, thanks in part to her teaming with TV on the Radio's Dave Sitek for production, as well as Yeah Yeah Yeahs guitarist Nick Zinner and David Bowie on backing vocals, is an atmospheric reinvention of the gravelly-voiced singer's work. It's designed to appeal to those curious about Johansson's vocal prowess, Waits fans and those who like their melodies layered and dreamy.

The album has Waits' stamp of approval, Johansson said. "It would be mortifying otherwise. It's such a

In terms of touring, Johansson's movie-shooting schedule makes it difficult to plan dates. The album, in fact, was recorded last summer but could only be released now because of her schedule, the label said. Another complicating factor is what Johansson calls her "crippling stage fright."

Girl from tape may testify on singer's behalf

Six years after he was charged with videotaping himself having sex with an underage girl, R&B superstar R. Kelly went on trial on Friday, with his alleged victim prepared to deny she is the person on the tape.

Kelly has been charged with 14 counts of videotaping, producing or soliciting child pornography. Prosecutors argue he knew, or should have known, the girl was a teenaged minor.

If convicted of all charges, the 41-year-old performer, whose given name is Robert Kelly, could be sentenced to up to 15 years in prison.

As Kelly arrived at the Cook County Criminal Courthouse in Chicago, fans cheered and critics waved signs and called the prolific songwriter, singer and producer a pedophile.

Judge Vincent Gaughan rejected a request from Kelly's lawyers to delay the trial because of recent publicity.

The proceeding, already postponed numerous times, is expected to last up to seven weeks, with jury selection continuing today.

Prosecutors say the lurid 26-minute tape was made between January 1998 and November 2000 when the girl was 13 or 14.

The alleged victim, who is now in her 20s, has denied she is the girl on the tape and could testify in Kelly's defence, according to court records.

Kelly's lawyers have argued it is not him on the tape either.

The story came to light in early 2002 when the Chicago Sun-Times turned over to police a copy of the widely bootlegged videotape.

The Chicago Sun-Times and the Tribune both reported last week another woman would testify that she and the girl had engaged in sex together with Kelly, and will identify her as the person on the tape, which will likely be played in court.

More trouble for DMX

Rap star DMX was arrested Friday on suspicion of drug possession and animal cruelty after two searches of his home allegedly turned up weapons, drugs, dog carcasses and abused pit bulls.

Phoenix area police said DMX, 37, whose real name is Earl Simmons, initially barricaded himself in his bedroom when officers arrived at his home at 3 a.m. He eventually surrendered without offering further resistance. "We are handling this case as we would any other incident of alleged animal cruelty," Maricopa County Attorney Andrew Thomas said in a statement.

Rapper DMX

It was the second time this week DMX, who rose to fame with hard-core rap songs and hit albums like It's Dark and Hell is Hot, has run afoul of Arizona authorities. On Tuesday, state police arrested him for driving at speeds as high as 114 miles per hour (183 kph) on a freeway. Police first raided his home last August. They found 12 distressed pit bulls and three dead animals partially buried on the property as well as a number of firearms. Police staged Friday's raid to arrest DMX on charges from their initial investigation.

This time, they also found unspecified illegal drugs.

DMX pleaded guilty in New Jersey to animal cruelty charges in 2002 for neglecting some 13 pit bulls, according to news reports. As part of his sentence, he was required to make a public service announcement against animal abuse.

Foxy pleads guilty

Less than a month after being released from prison, rapper Foxy Brown pleaded guilty recently to menacing a woman with her BlackBerry phone and avoided another possible prison sentence.

Brown, 29, whose real name is Inga Marchand, pleaded guilty to menacing a Brooklyn woman, a misdemeanor, in July 2007 while on probation for assaulting two nail salon stylists over a $20 US manicure, a court spokesman said.

Brown was accused of bruising the eye and chipping the tooth of her neighbour Arlene Raymond when she struck the woman with the device.

Brooklyn Supreme Court Judge John Walsh sentenced Brown to time already served, issued an order of protection and ordered Brown to submit a letter of apology, the spokesman said.

"I apologize for the incident that occurred on July 31, 2007, in that I attempted to scare Arlene Raymond and place her in harm's way," Brown said in a hand-written note.

Last month, Brown was released after serving eight months of a one-year sentence for violating her parole stemming from the nail salon incident.

» MOVIES Director John Maybury's upcoming adaptation of Wuthering Heights is facing a casting crisis after Natalie Portman (above) pulled out of one of the main roles. Local press reports put the smart money on a British replacement for Portman. For his part, Maybury is of the opinion that the famous English role should go to someone from Britain. Written by Olivia Hetreed, who also undertook the adaptation of Girl With A Pearl Earring, the new adaptation plans to steer away from "the stuffy costume drama" format. Lohan's spokeswoman, Leslie Sloane, said the 21-year-old actress was "definitely interested" in The Manson Girls, but denied online gossip reports that Lohan was dropped from that film because other actors refused to work with her.

The actress claims the company, owned by L'Oréal, breached an agreement signed in 2000, accusing the company of using her name and face in ads for years after her contract expired in 2004. The company gave the "false impression" Thurman was still linked to L'Oréal, the lawsuit said.

Shag accents, retro accessories seriously hip

If you like your interiors a little funky, then sit back, put your Austin Powers DVD on the telly and prepare for shag-tastic inspiration! Or read on!

Yup, today, we're all about the '60s and the '70s and we've got great advice if you want to go retro. And forget about spending a fortune — with a C and J scheme you always get loads of bang for your buck...

» Set your backdrop. Retro has loads of visual punch so paint walls a bright shade; fresh white latex is a great starting point and will 'open up' even the smallest space.

» Keep window dressing unfussy. Try simple white sheers and add 'pops' of colour with rollers. If you want to shell out on gorgeous funky investment blinds try Hunter Douglas (hunterdouglas.com) or visit Ikea for more affordable choices.

» Less is more. On this week's show, rather than be too literal and floor everything — wall to wall — in shag, we used white Karndean flexible 'planks' (visit karndean.ca for a free CD planning pack) to create a warm heaven for the tootsies. And to add texture? We added shag » 'Low slung' rules! Choose Danish sideboards, teak coffee tables and even quirky beanbags!

The 1960s was all about serviceability and ease of maintenance so upholstery fabrics were often wipe-clean vinyl or leather. Popular was a primary palette of red blue and yellow but, to mix it up a little, we took this week's scheme in a slightly different direction.

Instead of 'bright' upholstery we used a rich chocolate brown leather sectional from The Bay and brought it to life with zesty Hermes orange woollen cushions and throws. Remember — it's all in the mix.

Tip: 'Period' artwork doesn't need to cost a fortune. When cash is tight, a little creative thinking saves a fortune. To add a seriously original statement we bought a dozen clip frames from a dollar store, inserted orange card in some and brown in others then positioned circles of orange or brown card on their opposing colour bases. Arranged in a regimented line they look awesome and are reminiscent of statement wallpapers from the '60s!

Hit garage and yard sales and be amazed at some of the brightly coloured ceramics and glass wares that can be snapped up for just a few dollars each.

But you'd better be fast — 'Mid-Century Modern' is becoming seriously hip. In the words of Austin Powers: It's 'Groovy, baby!'

And in the words of Colin and Justin? It's 'Pricier, baby ... by the minute!' So get shopping ... while there are still some bargains to be had!

HGTV hosts Colin and Justin continue their mission of beautification with their Canadian design series Colin & Justin's Home Show, airing Tuesday at 11 p.m., and Saturday at 4 p.m. ET on HGTV (www.hgtv.ca).

Hogan's son gets jail time for crash

SENTENCING The son of wrestler and reality TV star Hulk Hogan was sentenced to eight months in jail on Friday for causing a car crash that seriously injured his passenger.

Nick Bollea, 17, pleaded no contest to a charge of reckless driving with serious bodily harm before he was sentenced by the judge. Bollea crashed his car into a tree in Clearwater, Fla., on Aug. 26 last year. Police said he was speeding and racing another car. Bollea's passenger and friend, John Graziano, 22, suffered severe head injuries and remains in a semi-conscious state in a hospital.

Chasing a feature film

Sopranos' creator David Chase signs deal for first film

David Chase, creator of the acclaimed TV mob drama The Sopranos, has signed a deal with Paramount Pictures to write, produce and direct his first feature film, the studio said Thursday.

Adhering to the kind of mystery surrounding some of Chase's past work, the studio offered no details of the project except to describe it as "an original drama," and a spokesman said the film was not an adaptation of The Sopranos.

Chase, 52, has a long-standing relationship with Paramount Studios chairman Brad Grey, who was his producing partner on The Sopranos and occasionally played himself on the series.

The show, which ended a six-season run in June 2007 with its famously ambiguous blackout finale, earned Chase two Emmys as best drama series and two others for his writing on the show.

Centered on the fictional life of a conflicted New Jersey mob boss, played by James Gandolfini, the HBO series was regarded by many critics as the finest drama ever to air on U.S. television.

"David is one of the great storytellers of our time, and his debut as a filmmaker is both highly anticipated and long overdue," Grey said in a statement issued by the Viacom-owned studio.

A spokesman said a timetable for the film's production and release have not been set.

Chase's television career spans three decades and includes work on such series as The Rockford Files, I'll Fly Away, Northern Expo- sure and the made-for-TV movie Off The Minnesota Strip.

House

This show always goes out with a bang — sometimes literally, as in the second-season finale in which House (Hugh Laurie) was shot. In the opener of this gripping two-part season ender, he loses a big chunk of his memory due to a bus accident. He has a lingering feeling that someone else on the bus was deathly ill, but he can't remember the details. Robert Sean Leonard also stars in "House's Head." 9 PM on 3 GTV

Samantha Who?

As the old song says, breaking up is hard to do, but Sam (Christina Applegate) is wishing it were a little easier. She's putting things on hold with Todd (Barry Watson) until he's finally free of Chloe (Kiele Sanchez) — who, Sam suspects, is lying about a sick relative to forestall the breakup. Birthday party plans for Sam have Regina and Andrea (Jean Smart, Jennifer Esposito) at odds in the season finale, "The Birthday." 9:32 PM on 20 ABC 6 SHRO

Liv's 'doing great' after separation

Actress Liv Tyler is bouncing back from her separation from rocker husband Royston Langdon according to her dad, usmagazine.com reports.

"Liv is doing great," Aerosmith's Steven Tyler said. The couple have a three-year-old son, Milo.

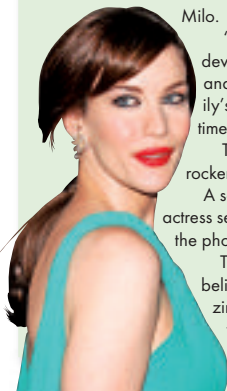

"They remain good friends and devoted parents to their son Milo and are requesting that their family's privacy be respected at this time," the rep said late last week.

Tyler, 30, married the Arckid rocker, 36, in 2003.

A source reportedly overheard the actress seeking advice from a lawyer on the phone.

Tyler, who said in 2004, "I don't believe in divorce," told Us magazine in February she had forgotten about Valentine's Day.

Miley's too busy for boyfriend

Singer/actress Miley Cyrus is too busy to have a serious boyfriend, and insists her life in the spotlight is "too much to handle" for any potential suitors, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The 15-year-old, who has been linked to fellow teen singer Nick Jonas, the youngest of the Jonas Brothers, admits her hectic lifestyle has ruined any chance of a love life right now, although she prefers to be the elusive girl "no one can get."

"I think I'm too much to handle right now," Cyrus says. "There's so much going on in my life at the moment with travelling and there's always cameras following me, all that kind of stuff. I don't think it's great for dating anyone. There are guys I like to hang out with, but I like to be the girl who no one can get. I think that's always hotter anyway."

Lindsay stole my clothes: Model

Lindsay Lohan's enemies are coming out of hiding in the wake of her fur-coat controversy — and now a model is rehashing her claims that Lohan stole her clothing, as well, People.com reports.

The same week a Columbia University student insisted Lohan swiped her $11,000 US blond mink coat in New York City earlier this year, model Lauren Hastings says on the buzznet.com website that the actress lifted thousands of dollars worth of items from her closet, Inside Edition reports.

"Basically, I have two closets, a lot of the stuff was missing out of one and the next closet was almost completely empty," Hastings says on a video featured on the buzznet site, claiming her things disappeared during an unauthorized late-night party tossed by her housekeeper.

Citing five witnesses, Hastings, 23, also alleges, "They all said they saw Lindsay Lohan basically in my closet, handing a bag of clothes to her bodyguard."

In an e-mail to People, Lohan's rep responds: "This is all not true. It's not what it seems."

Police reportedly searched for the missing items, but they were not recovered.

According to documents that Inside Edition obtained from the Los Angeles County District Attorney's office, Hastings did report the theft of clothing, but the DA's office pressed no charges against Lohan, due to insufficient evidence.

"I contacted Lindsay and said, 'Look, I know you stole my clothes.' She then said I was completely delusional, I was pathetic," Hastings said.

Nicole opens up about kids

Nicole Richie's life now is all about her baby daughter Harlow — and more babies, the New York Daily News reports.

"It would completely break my heart if she got a tattoo," the inked Richie reveals in the June issue of Harpers Bazaar.

The Simple Life star says the most surprising thing about being a new mom is "how fun it is" and adds she expects her brood to expand. "I want five children. Twin boys and three girls. I've wanted that since I was a little girl."

She hopes to raise the kids where she grew up in Los Angeles and is adamant about staying in California. Her boyfriend Joel Madden, however, thinks L.A. is a toxic environment to bring up children and wants to move the young family to Thailand or Sydney.

instructions»

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
